Instructions

The idea of the Indianapolis Instagram takeover is to give followers a sense of what a “week in the life” is like for your church, leading up to and including Bishop Jennifer’s visit.

In your first post, please tell us who you are. Please include your church’s name and location. Something like, “This week St. Swithun’s Episcopal Church in Yourtown, Indiana is taking over the diocesan account. We’re so excited to show you what life is like here!”

How often you post is up to you (anywhere from 3 posts for the whole week to 3 posts per day) You might show us your parish ministries, your worship services, the way congregants are engaged in mission in the community outside church walls, or perhaps some good vestry meeting selfies -- whatever is going on in your community this week that helps us get to know you. You may want to provide the log-in to two or three trusted leaders in your congregation to get a fuller picture of life in your community.

Please do not share photos of minors without a signed release from parents or guardians.

If you have questions or trouble logging in, feel free to contact Kathleen Moore at kathleen@canticlecommunications.com
